1. Group name:
The Anti-Scammers
2. Group members:
John Ocampo, Emm Ocampo, Jesse Ocampo
3. Title of project scope:
Cybercrime: How Scam Call Centers Target Older Generations
We want to research how scam call centers, especially those in India, work and the different methods they use, such as phishing or even ransomware, to force people into paying them thousands of dollars for nonexistent threats and bogus credit card charges. While most of these cybercriminals tend to target the older generations it is crucial to acknowledge that these scammers have been using increasingly sophisticated scamming techniques, such as taking over targeted PCs through malware and even using HTML to modify web pages in an effort to appear more authentic.
4. Dimension of labor:
All members of the team will contribute to the overall writing, researching, and design of the case study from beginning to end however a more in-depth division of labor will look like this:

John - In charge of designing all infographics to be used
Emm - In charge of researching citations, references, as well as all other statistics or outside sources to be used in the case study
Jesse - In charge of writing and editing the research questions and main frame of the case study.
